WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 2009, 5PM
WEILL HALL ATRIUM
CORNELL UNIVERSITY

Jonathan Wong (BA, 2008, double major in dance and psychology) will be presented with the Cornell University Undergraduate Artist Award following his site-specific, interdisciplinary performance piece with dancers from the Cornell Dance Program and members of the a capella group "Last Call."

The performance will borrow from various popular and concert dance forms - drawing attention to the formal similarities and dissimilarities between them. Audience members will move throughout the atrium space at Weill Hall, creating an interactive experience.

By integrating vocabulary from social dance, street dance and concert dance with their various choreographic styles, the piece will blur the boundaries between high and low art in dance - as well as their political implications.

Free and open to the public
